

Joe K.H. Wong (Master of Electronic Engineering)

Joe is the Chief Engineer of Villable.com and the Chief IT Consultant of J.E. Harrison & Co. Ltd. He is a professional specialist in web application development, system integration and network engineering. Joe joined Lexis Nexis China in 2004 as a Deputy System Engineer and left as the System Architect in 2006. He successfully migrated the prcinvestment.com to Lexis Nexis China Online in Lexis Nexis. As an Assistant Engineer in New World Telecom (NWT) in 2001, he managed the server farm and participated in various customer projects including Hotel Broadband, Wireless LAN billing System. He left as an IT Engineer in NWT in 2004. Before graduating his master degree, Joe started his career by bringing his own school project to a private company in 2000. He immediately took over the technology development team of the company as the Technology Development Officer.

Joe holds Master of Engineering and Bachelor of Engineering degrees in Electronic Engineering from Hong Kong Polytechnic University. Joe started programming since he was a kid. He had his own BBS system using his Home PC and a dial-up modem in 1993 when he was 16. Joe built his first Internet Web Site in 1996 and his first mobile WAP site since 1999.